

RECLAIMING LOST YOUTH

One patient's path to rejuvenation in the office of Jonathan Hilton Sherwyn, MD, FACS

As told by Amy E. Newburger, MD, in her book
Looking Good At Any Age (Doubleday © 2000)

"I whisked her (Veronica) off to a consultation with Dr. Jonathan Sherwyn, a plastic surgeon in Manhattan whose work I trust implicitly."

"He sat her down in front of a mirror, and by the time he finished discreetly pointing out the way her face had changed due to aging... she saw herself with new, more analytical eyes."

"Within days of her visit she signed up for a face-lift with Dr. Sherwyn... to allow herself the luxury of reclaiming some of her lost beauty and looking her very best... that's why she had flown 3,000 miles for the procedure."

"She would be given the extraordinary chance to be reborn as she was meant to be: an attractive fifty year old woman who would find joy in how she looked."

"Dr. Sherwyn had one solitary focus: to transform Veronica's fifty year old face to a youthful version of herself."

"The surgery was the most precise I had ever seen."

"His work was so careful, so complete and so respectful of her deepest desires."

"It was clear that he regarded his work as a mission, and that the power he had to transform Veronica's image was held in sacred trust."

"No longer would she be anxious by the past. Instead her face could now give her entree to new unlined life within."

"The change in Veronica's appearance had been a catalyst for renewal... to a woman filled with vigor, youthfulness and hope."
